Translation Shift of Adjective Phrases in The Picture Of Dorian Gray Novel by Oscar Wilde and Its Translation

ABSTRACT

This research investigates the translation shift of English adjective phrases in the novel “The Picture of Dorian Gray” (1890) by Oscar Wilde into Indonesian as “Lukisan Dorian Gray” (2015) that translated by Diyan Yulianto. This research focuses on the study of translation shifts that classify the translation shift of adjective phrase and also describes the equivalence of the adjective phrase with its translation. This research uses descriptive qualitative method. With this method, the objects of analysis are adjective phrases on both novels. The data are obtained from the novel “The Picture of Dorian Gray” for the source text while the target texts are obtained from “Lukisan Dorian Gray”. In the data collecting techniques, the writer uses documentation technique. The data analyzes by applying translation theories from Catford and Nida. These theories aim to find the translation shift in the adjective phrases based on the category shift and level shift and the translation equivalence by comparing two languages in both novels in order to achieve the objectives of study to describe the translation shift and translation equivalence. The result of the research shows that there are 323 adjective phrase shifts that are found in the translation. This research finds that there are 136 data belong to structure shift, 82 data belong to class shift consist of adjective phrases that are translated into noun phrase, verb phrase, and noun, 34 data belong to unit shift that consist of adjective phrases that are translated into adjective and adjective clause and 71 data belong to level shift. This research also finds that this translation is equivalent translation where 137 data belong to formal equivalence and 186 data belong to dynamic equivalence.

ABSTRAK

Studi ini meneliti pergeseran terjemahan frasa adjektival bahasa Inggris dalam novel “The Picture of Dorian Gray” (1890) oleh Oscar Wilde ke dalam bahasa Indonesia yang berjudul “Lukisan Dorian Gray” (2015) yang diterjemahkan oleh Diyan Yulianto. Penelitian ini berfokus pada studi pergeseran terjemahan yang mengklasifikasikan pergeseran penerjemahan pada frasa adjektival dan juga mendeskripsikan kesepadanannya dari frasa adjektival dengan terjemahannya. Penelitian ini menggunakan metode penelitian deskriptif kualitatif. Dengan metode ini, objek dari kajian ini adalah frasa adjektival yang ditemukan di kedua novel. Data yang diteliti diperoleh dari novel “The Picture of Dorian Gray” sebagai teks sumber sedangkan untuk teks target diperoleh dari novel “Lukisan Dorian Gray”. Untuk teknik pengumpulan data, penulis menggunakan teknik dokumentasi. Data yang diperoleh dianalisis dengan mengaplikasikan teori penerjemahan dari Catford dan Nida. Penggunaan teori ini bertujuan untuk menemukan pergeseran penerjemahan yang muncul dalam frasa adjektival berdasarkan pada pergeseran kategori dan pergeseran level dan juga kesepadanannya terjemahan dengan membandingkan dua bahasa pada kedua buah novel untuk mencapai tujuan dari Penelitian yaitu mendeskripsikan pergeseran penerjemahan dan kesepadanannya penerjemahan. Hasil penelitian ini menunjukkan bahwa ada 323 pergeseran penerjemahan frasa adjektival. Penelitian ini menemukan ada 136 data yang termasuk ke dalam pergeseran struktur, 82 data termasuk ke dalam pergeseran kelas kata yang terdiri dari penerjemahan frasa adjektival ke dalam frasa nominal, frase verbal, dan nominal, 34 data termasuk ke dalam pergeseran unit yang terdiri dari penerjemahan frasa adjektival ke dalam adjektival dan klausa dan ada 71 data yang termasuk ke dalam pergeseran level. Penelitian ini juga menemukan bahwa terjemahan sepadan dimana terdapat 137 data termasuk ke dalam kesepadanannya formal dan 186 data termasuk ke dalam kesepadanannya dinamis.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background of Study

The most important device to communicate is language which has important role in human life. Human as social creature can have interaction with the others when they use language in their daily life and language is a system that joins sound and also meaning together. Language and communication have connection each other because when people communicate with the other, they use language as the instrument.

Languages around the world are different each other. As social creature, human uses language to express their emotion and uses language to communicate with each other. Therefore, to communicate with other especially in other country which has different language, everyone should know foreign language. It is important to study other cultures in order to know each other including the language especially English language as an international language and it is used as global communication.

Actually, every language has determination in the system of sound, the form, the system of word, the system of sentence, and the meaning. However, there are several factors in language society that caused the language becomes not similar from each other. They are education, age, religion, profession and activity, and also the culture background (Chaer, 2011:3).

In the Holy Qur'an, it is said that we are created in various such male and female also tribes which are actually have different culture. The difference of the culture may cause the difference in language especially in different nations. Thus, it makes us should learn another language to know and understood each other. This message is said in the Holy Qur'an Surah Al Hujurat ayah 13 which says:

 لِتَعَارِفُوا إِنَّ أَكْرَمَكُمْ عِنْدَ اللَّهِ أَنْفَقْنَاكُمْ إِنَّ اللَّهَ عَلِيمٌ خَيْرٌ

"O mankind! We created you from a single (pair) of a male and a female, and made you into nations and tribes, that ye may know each other (not that ye may despise each other). Verily the most honoured of you in the sights of God is (He who is) the most righteous of you. And God full knowledge and is well acquainted (with all things)" (Ali, 1994: 514)

The actualization of language can be seen in text. Text can be delivered in some materials such as books or novels. They are created to be published in various languages. For people who do not understand the language, they will be confused to get the ideas or messages of the materials. There are books or novels that published in certain language and they are then translated into another language to make readers in different language can read dan get the messges of them. Because there is no similarity in the language, sometimes there will be difficulties for the translator to get the appropriate equivalence from the source text to target text. To make the content of materials is understood by other people in different language, translation play a particular role to deliver the material in different language equivalently with strategies determined by the competent of the translator and also translation method so that the reader will be easily understood the meaning and messages contained.

Translation is an interpretation process of the meaning from the origin language or usually called as source language (SL) and the result of the translation should be equivalent with target language that deliver the same messages or purposes. The people who do translation are called as translator. Translation should consider some important aspects between the source language and target language such as grammar, context, convention and the others. English language and bahasa Indonesia are different so it needs to transfer English into bahasa Indonesian to make Indonesian people understand the content including purposes, ideas, or knowledge of certain materials.

According to Catford (1965: 1), translation is a process on language of changing or substituting text of certain language (as source text) for the text in another language (as target text). The changes occur between ST and TT then called as translation shift. When translating text from one language to the other language such as from English to Indonesian, there will be some changes and differences in some aspects that occur in the translation called shift.

Shifting becomes a major concept in the sentence analysis of the translation. This concept can help us learn about how unit in different level can be changed into different structure. Catford (1978:73) states that ‘shifts’ mean as the departure from formal correspondence in the process of going from source language or SL to the target language or TL. The changes or shift can appear in various types. Catford also defines the translation shift into two major types including level shift and also category shift.

These two major types of translation shift still can be divided into some types. Level shift, however it can be defined as the translation process which is the SL in the linguistic level translated into TL equivalently but at the different level. Level shift can be divided into two types that are upward rank shift and also downward rank shift. On the other hand, category shift according to Catford means “unbounded and rank-bound translation: the first being approximately ‘normal’ or ‘free’ translation in which SL-TL equivalences are set up at whatever rank is appropriate.” (Catford, 1978:75). Category shift itself can be distinguished into four types include structure-shifts, class-shifts, unit-shifts, and intra-system-shifts.

This research aims to find the English adjective phrases appeared in the novel which are contained translation shift when they are translated into Indonesian. Some English adjective phrases will be different and changed when translated into Indonesian language because there is different language system and form between English and Indonesian. The change here then called as translation shift and it will be analyzed. One of the problems in translation is the translation of adjective phrases especially when translating English novel into Indonesian to achieve the equivalence. Translating the content should be equivalent so that the reader will be easily understood the message clearly when something is described or explained. Expressing the meaning should be handled carefully in the translation so there will be no misunderstanding.

In translation, to convey the meaning from source language into target language is involved a process to find textual equivalence so that the meaning will be delivered clearly to the receptor. Equivalence is also usually related to the translation method and also the function of the text. It is supported by Nida and Taber's statement that translation is process of reproducing the closest meaning of the message form SL to TL first in meaning and second in the style. Later Nida divides equivalence into two categories that are formal and dynamic equivalence. Then, equivalence also becomes key concept in translation (1982: 12).

To analyze the translation shift which occurs in the text, this research uses novel "The Picture of Dorian Gray". The novel contains of good moral values about human life that can be applied to the daily life. Moral value is just like a theme that form as content in a novel and want to deliver to the reader by an author (Nurgiyantoro, 2010: 320). Sometimes, novel shows or reflects the real life of people and it can be a lesson for who read it. As in this novel, the author wants to warn us that we should not praise our physical appearance but ignore everything that destroys us inside. The author wants to communicate and deliver the messages through his works. So that translation of novel should be translated correctly and carefully in order to deliver the message and the values of the novel as well. Moreover, this is the first and only famous novel from Oscar Wilde who regarded as one of the greatest playwrights in Victorian Era. This novel is also included in the category of a hundred best novel that written in English (<http://www.theguardian.com>).

Diyan Yulianto, he is translated this novel into Indonesian under the title Lukisan Dorian Gray. He also has translated some foreign books into Indonesian and created books for English learners. The translator of this novel may have good experience and knowledge in both English and Indonesian language so the translation will be good and clearly understood. The novel contains so many adjective phrases that can be used to analyze translation shift occurs there between English language as ST and Indonesian language as TT because there will be difference in both text. Adjective phrases become part of the linguistic study because it has relation with words.

Shift that is analyzed in this research can occur in the phrases especially in the edjective phrase. It involves the change of structure of the adjective phrase, in the class, in the unit and also in the level. Like in this adjective phrase below that involves shift when translated form English into Indonesian.

Example:

SL text: Anglomanie is very fashionable over there now, I hear

TL text: Aku dengar mode pakaian Inggris sedang menjadi tren di sana

From the translation above, it can be seen that there is a shift in its class. It is called as class shift which is adjective phrase in SL text “very fashionable over there now, I hear” is translated become verb phrase in TL text with “sedang menjadi tren di sana” as progressive. Although it is translated into different class, this translation is equivalent because both text explain that Anglomanie or England peculiar clothes become fashionable or become trend. This is kind of dynamic equivalence where the translator gives his or her thought to the translation.

Translating English adjective phrase into Indonesian actually is not an easy process because form of English and Indonesian's adjective phrase is sometimes different. Because of the structure is different, some English adjective phrases can have different meaning or sense when it is transferred into Indonesian especially in the case of degree or the use of diction. Sometimes, it is also difficult to achieve the equivalence for the given SL in this case is English to Indonesia as TL which has different language system. The use of different diction to replace the SL into TL may give different sense so it should be translated carefully and correctly. Translating adjective phrase should be appropriate, so the reader can really understand and get the meaning of the things especially noun, pronoun, or other things that will be told and will be described in the novel.

1.2 Problem Statements

Based on the background of study above, this paper is aimed to answer questions:

1. How are the translation shifts of the adjective phrases in The Picture of Dorian Gray Novel by Oscar Wilde?
2. What are these translations translated equivalently?

1.3 Objectives of Study

The objectives of analysis in this research are:

1. To describe the adjective phrases in the novel “The Picture of Dorian Gray” by Oscar Wilde shifted into Indonesian translation as ”Lukisan Dorian Gray” that are translated by Diyan Yulianto.
2. To analyze and determine whether the text is translated equivalently or not.

1.4 Significances of Study

Academically, this research can be a contribution for the development of English learners especially for who interested in the translation studies in expanding the knowledge of translation shift process as well as translation equivalence portrayed in the novel The Picture of Dorian Gray and its translation.

Practically, this research also expected to give academic knowledge of how to understand the translation process, make an analysis for identifying the problems such shifting and also find out the solution of the translation process.

1.5 Literature Review

There are many researches that have been written in the term of translation research especially that focuses on the shifting. The theory that is used is similar but the object of the research is different. This research focuses on the adjective phrases shift found in Indonesian translation of novel Lukisan Dorian Gray by Diyan Yulianto it is from the English novel The Picture of Dorian Gray by Oscar Wilde. The writer finds some researches that relate to the translation shifts.

The first research was from Zulfan Arif (2015) in The Translation Shift of Compound Nouns in The Great Gatsby's Movie Subtitles, from State Islamic University Sunan Kalijaga, Yogyakarta. The object of the research translation shift of the compound noun in a movie subtitles. The theory is used in this research is from Catford about translation shift and also uses Haspelmath and Sims' compound noun theory. The research uses qualitative method where the data source obtained from movie subtitle in the DVD as the primary data and it also obtained from some critical works or books as the secondary data. The data are collected by watching the movie with Indonesian subtitle and compared with the English subtitle. Then the data are identified from SL to the TL which contains compound noun.

From the research, there are 73 cases of the compound noun shift in the data. These compound noun shifts are divided into 7 kinds. There are 28 data of compound noun into single noun, 21 cases of compound noun into noun phrase, 4 cases of compound noun shifted into adjective, 2 cases of compound noun into adverb, 3 cases of compound noun shifted into adverbial phrase, 15 cases of compound noun that translated into compound noun, and 1 case of compound noun shifted into noun clause.

In the research, there are three factors that cause compound noun shift in the translation. First, compound noun shift is caused by meaning components that is packaged in lexical items then it is packaged differently in one language. In this term there are 51 cases found. Second, it is because of meaning component occurs on several surface structures lexical item found in 8 cases. The last factor is one form that uses to represent several meaning and it is found in 14 cases. These factors have an influence in which compound noun shifts occur in the translation.

The second research that also had relation with the translation shift theory was from Yeli Setyawati (2015) in The Translation of Present Perfect Verb Phrases in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's The Hound of The Baskervilles into Anjing Setan, a graduate from State Islamic University Sunan Kalijaga, Yogyakarta. The object of the research is the translation shift and equivalence of the present perfect verb phrase in the novel The Hound of the Baskerville that is translated into Indonesia as Anjing Setan. The research uses translation shift theory from Catford to analyze the object while the research method, Yeli (2015) uses descriptive-qualitative method with semantic and syntactic approach.

The result of the research is that there are some present perfect verb phrases that are not translated or called as not-translated translation and some of them translated into Indonesian such as sudah, telah, pernah, sudah pernah, belum, belum pernah, and tidak pernah. For these translations, there are some translation shifts that occur. They are level shift and category shift. Level shift that occurs in the translation into Indonesian are sudah, telah, pernah, sudah pernah, belum, belum pernah, and tidak pernah. Then, there is also category shift that occurs in the translation that is translated into unit shift as telah, belum, sudah pernah and non-translated translation categorized as unit shift and class shift.

This research also analyzes whether the translations are translated equivalently or not. In term of equivalence, the researcher mentions that there are some data found translated in both lexically and contextually equivalent. On the other hand, there are some data that are translated contextually but contextually they are non-equivalent.

The third prior research was Rezkiana Safitri's graduating paper of Muhammadiyah University of Surakarta (2012). The research entitled Translation Shift of Verb and Verb phrases in Novel's Jodi Picoult: My Sister's Keeper Into Penyelamat Kakaku. The research aims to analyze and classify the translation shift that occurs in the translation of verb and verb phrases in the novel My Sister's Keeper by Jodi Picoult into Penyelamat Kakaku and describes the equivalence. The theory that is used in the research is translation shift theory from Catford. In the process of analyzing the object, Rezkiana uses descriptive-qualitative method and finds 150 data that can be divided into several types of translation shift.

The result of the research shows that there are two translation shifts occur in the translation process they are category shift and level shift. For category shift, the research finds 6 cases of translation shift with 29 data. These cases are verb that is translated into noun, verb is translated into adverb, verb is translated into adjective, linking verb is translated into noun, linking verb is translated into adverb, and verb that is not translated (non-translated translation). For the level shift, there are 5 cases found in the translation shift process with 121 data. These cases are verb that is translated into verb phrase, linking verb is translated into verb phrase, verb phrase is translated into noun, adjective phrases is translated into verb, and verb phrase is translated into adjective.

The problem statement in the research also mentions the equivalence of the translation. In term of equivalence, the researcher finds that there are equivalence and non-equivalence translations. The research finds 147 data for equivalence translation while there are 3 data for non-equivalence translation. From the percentages of the equivalence form, it can be concluded that this translation of verb and verb phrases in the My Sister Keeper novel by Jodi Picoult into Indonesian as Penyelamat Kakakku encompasses as equivalence translation.

The fourth research that had similarities with this research in translation shift was Hasrul Harahap's paper (2013) In Penerjemahan Frasa Verbal Dari Bahasa Inggris Ke Dalam Bahasa Indonesia (Pada novel Things Fall Apart karya Chinua Achebe dan terjemahannya diterjemahkan oleh Cahya Wiratama), a graduate from State Universitas Negeri Jakarta. This research analyzes the translation of the verb phrases in the Things Fall Apart Novel by Chinua Achebe translated into Indonesian by Cahya Wiratmaja.

This research finds that there are factors that become the cause of deviation at the novel such as not translated phrases and error correspondence in lexical and grammatical. The other result of this research is that the translator mostly uses literal translation strategy to translate the text and uses some techniques such as description and transposition techniques. There is also shifting appears in the translation and it is grammatical to lexical shift that causes system of source language and target language different.

The last prior research that had similarities and relationship with this research was from Robby Hamdanur (2011) in An Analysis of Unit Shift in The Translation of Agatha Christie's The Mystery of The Blue Train into Misteri Kereta Api Biru By Nyonya Suwarni A.S, a graduate from Sumatra Utara University. This research analyzes the unit shift that occurs in the translation process of The Mystery of The Blue Train translated into Indonesian as Misteri Kereta Api Biru. The research aims to find the unit shifts in 5 levels include morpheme, word, phrase, clause and sentence. The theory that is used in the research is Catford's translation shift that states shift can occur in unit of language in any level that is appropriate. Research method that uses to analyze the translation is descriptive-qualitative method where the data are taken from Agatha Christie's novel entitled The Mystery of The Blue Train and its translation by Nyonya Suwarni A.S under the title Misteri Kereta Api Biru.

From the research, the researcher finds that there are 389 cases for unit shift in the translation. For these cases, there are several shift occurs in the translation as morpheme into word for 36 cases, word into morpheme for 1 case, word into phrase for 97 cases, word into clause for 10 cases, word into sentence for 1 case, phrase into word for 124 cases, phrase into clause for 38 cases, phrase into sentence for 5 cases, from clause into word for 34 cases, clause into phrase for 16 cases, clause into sentence for 7 cases, sentence into word for 12 cases, sentence into phrase for 7 cases and sentence into clause for 1 case. It can be concluded that the dominant unit shift that occurs in the translation is phrase into word shift. It can be seen from the number of data and percentage that show phrase into word translation reaches 124 cases.

This research has some similarities with the prior researches especially the translation shift occurs in the novel. However, this research also has differences that will differentiate this research with the prior researches. If it is compared with all of the prior researches, this research has differences in the subject and the object. First, this research focuses on analysis of translation shift of adjective phrase while the first prior research is on compound noun, second prior research is on present perfect verb phrases, third prior research is on verb and verb phrases, and fourth prior research is on verb phrases and ast prior research is on unit shift. The theory that used in all prior researches is also using translation shift theory by Catford but using different subject and not using The Picture of Dorian Gray novel by Oscar Wilde.

1.6 Theoretical Approach

This research tries to analyze the translation shift of adjective phrases that occur in the translation of Oscar Wilde's novel entitled The Picture of Dorian Gray into Indonesia by Diyan Yulianto entitled Lukisan Dorian Gray. This analysis aims to find the adjective phrases shift in the translation of Novel from English to bahasa Indonesia. Translating adjective phrases from English into Indonesian is not easy because there are differences of the structure and form between English and Indonesian adjective. To achieve the equivalence, there is also shift that occurs so the translation will be easier to understand. This research then tries to identify English adjective phrases shift that translated into Indonesian as well as the equivalence.

Adjective can be defined as words that explain something about noun and pronoun. It can be said to modify a noun or name an inherent attribute of noun, attribute that granted a noun, telling kind of noun, or words that also can occur in comparative form (Verspoor & Sauter, 2000, 92). Adjective may be followed or preceded by the other word (or can be single word) and called as adjective phrase. Adjective phrase is defined as a group of words that have the modifiers. The modifiers of adjective can be premodifier which is always adverb and also can be post-modifier that can be adverb phrase, prepositional phrase or clause. Adjective or adjective phrase can function as predicative or attributive in a sentence as Tallerman's statement about adjective or adjective phrase function (2015: 58). These adjective phrases that found in the novel will be analyzed for this research.

To analyze this phenomenon, the research uses translation shift theory by Catford (1965). Catford states that 'shifts' means as the departure from formal correspondence in the process of going from source language or SL to the target language or TL. Word-shift can occur in language units in proper level. According to Catford (1965: 73), translation shift can be divided into two major types they are level shift and category shift. Category shift consists of structure shifts, class shifts, unit shifts and also inter-system shifts.

The research also wants to analyze if the adjective phrases are translated equivalently or not. Translation is process to find the textual equivalence from the source language in target language to deliver the meaning. To examine this problem, the research also takes Nida's theory about translation equivalences. The purpose of the translation is to achieve "equivalent effect" to produce the same effect for the reader of translation as the reader of the original text as close as possible (Newmark, 1988:48). Nida (1969:12) also states that translation consist of producing closest equivalent of massage from source language into target language. There are two types of translation equivalences according to Nida (in Hatim & Munday, 2004: 40), they are formal equivalence and dynamic equivalence.

1.7 Method of Research

When doing a research, a researcher needs plans or procedures for the research that will span the steps from the broad assumption and then detailed the methods of the collecting of the data, analysis and also the interpretation. The plan that used to do the research can involve decisions, the decision then also involves approach which is should be used to study the topics of research. According to Creswell, there are three approaches that used to do research; qualitative, quantitative and also mixed method. The distinction between qualitative and quantitative is that the qualitative focused the research using words rather than number that identical with quantitative (2014: 3). This research uses qualitative method rather than quantitative method.

1.7.1 Type of Research

The research uses descriptive-qualitative research to present some data and complete the research. Descriptive-qualitative is chosen because the result of this research will be described the facts, characteristics and also the relation of the elements. According to Creswell (in Raco, 2010: 7), qualitative research is an investigation to explore and to understand a central condition by collecting information that usually in text or data. Data or texts are analyzed and then the result of the analysis usually formed as description. The last result of qualitative research then formed as written report.

1.7.2 Data Source

According to Arikunto (2006:129), data source in research is subject from where the data can be obtained. The data of the research will be obtained from the novel The Picture of Dorian Gray by Oscar Wilde and the Indonesian translation by Diyan Yulianto entitled Lukisan Dorian Gray. The novel consists of translation shift of adjective phrases that will be the object of research.

1.7.3 Data Collection Technique

Creswell states that there are four basic types of data collecting techniques in qualitative research they are qualitative observation, interview, document and also audio visual material (2014: 190). The data of this research are collected with documentation technique to collect qualitative documents. The data are the adjective phrases found in the English and their translation in Indonesian novel version that will be compared. The following steps are reading the English novel entitled The Picture of Dorian Gray, then read the Indonesian novel entitled Lukisan Dorian Gray and compared them. Next, the writer identifies the adjective phrases in source language and their translation in target language and the last step is putting the data side by side to analyze the shift and the equivalence.

1.7.4 Data Analysis Technique

Qualitative data may be vary, so in analyzing them, a method in the qualitative proposal is needed to specify the steps. In term of analyzing technique, the data of this research are analyzed using describing analysis method. The method is reducted as following steps. The first step is analyzing the data as adjective phrase, classifying the translation shift and describing the categories of shifts that occur. The next step is classifying and describing the equivalence of adjective phrases in novel The Picture of Dorian Gray into Indonesian Lukisan Dorian Gray.

1.8 Paper Organization

This paper is divided into four chapters, as follows:

1. Chapter One: Introduction

In this chapter, general information about research is explained and presented. This chapter consists of background of study, problem statements, objectives of study, significances of study, literature review, theoretical approach, method of research and also paper organization.

2. Chapter Two: Theoretical Background

This chapter contains the explanation about the overview of translation theory and adjective phrase theory.

3. Chapter Three: Finding and Discussion

This chapter contains the data analysis that is found from the novel The picture of Dorian Gray into Lukisan Dorian Gray with the interpretation and result that is done based on the theory that mentioned before.

4. Chapter Four: Conclusion and Suggestion

This chapter contains the conclusion that drawn from the research. In this chapter, there is also suggestion for people who want to conduct research or studies that relates to this research.

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

4.1 Conclusion

From the previous analysis, this research draws the following conclusion that will answer the problem statements in the research. There are shifting of the adjective phrases found in the novel The Picture of Dorian Gray that are translated into Lukisan Dorian Gray namely; level shift for 71 data that consist of translation of grammatical form to lexicon. Structure shift also can be found in the translation for 136 data that consists of degree adjective phrase that is translated to superlative adjective phrase while the position of modifier is changed into different structure. There is also 82 data of class shift found in the translation that consists of adjective phrase translated into noun phrase, verb phrase and noun. The last is unit shift for 34 data that consist of adjective phrase that translated into adjective and clause. The most frequent translation shift in the novel The Picture of Dorian Gray is structure shift.

The equivalence of the translation is divided into two categories; those are formal equivalence and dynamic equivalence. From the frequency of the translation equivalence, it can be concluded that the translation of adjective phrase found in The Picture of Dorian Gray novel is an equivalent translation mostly in dynamic equivalence where the translator translate the adjective phrase using his ideas or thought so that the adjective phrase could be understood by the reader.

4.2 Suggestion

Translation becomes the way how to solve the misunderstanding problem that often faced by people in communication especially in difference language such English and Indonesia. In order to get the understanding, translation should be done correctly and should be equivalent. Translator is expected to have good skill in language, knowledge and knowing all the elements of both language that will be translated.

The next researches can analyze about the translation of another phrase such prepositioanl phrase, noun phrase, and so on. The reserach also can try to analyze the higher unit such as clause which will be more various using translation theories from Catford or Nida.
